Program Overview (400 character limit)

SRA's Corrective Reading Decoding program has features that have been demonstrated through research studies to be effective in improving student performance. This intensive intervention for students grades 3 and above. The Direct Instruction approach provides; explicit teacher directed, consistent and interactive instruction. The is approach is the most efficient for communicating with the students, for evaluating their performance on a moment-to-moment basis, and for achieving student mastery. This program was previously adopted by TUSD in 2011 but never purchased for use.

Program of Study (400 character limit)

Each level is based on cumulative skill development. Skills and strategies are taught and learning is scaffolded for mastery learning. Once a skill or strategy is taught, students receive practice in applying that skill until the end of the level. This type of cumulative development has been proven effective so that skills are not only taught, but are mastered and automatic.

Justification for Book Request (400 character limit)

Corrective Reading is designed for any students 2 or more years behind in reading. Through a placement test, students are taught at their instructional level and are quickly remediated on the Foundational Skills they are lacking. It is possible to see 2 years' growth in one school year. Please see attachment

Description of Text (400 character limit)

There are 4 levels of the Decoding program of Corrective Reading. Through a placement test, students are placed into 65 lesson programs beginning at non- reader. It is expected that students complete two programs per school year; with the exception of Decoding C which is 125 lessons. The time commitment for Corrective Reading is 30-45 per day 4-5 days per week. Please see attachment
