

CURRICULUM NOT ADOPTED

Common Core Curriculum Framework

The Common Core Curriculum Framework was designed in the TUSD Office of High School Leadership in the 2011-2012 school year.

Notes regarding use of this framework:

1. This structure will:
 - Provide in-common definitions of anchor standards
 - Articulate district-wide enduring understandings for all TUSD ELA classrooms
 - Support curriculum guide work for individual sites and classrooms through additional instructional and curricular resources.

2. In an effort to assist teachers in understanding the alignment between the standard ELA classroom and the Culturally Relevant ELA classroom, this document includes the following additions:
 - Sample essential questions
 - Suggested activities in each standard and cluster
 - Recommended texts to expand the scope of texts students will use during the year
 - Sequenced topics (or unit headings) for each class

3. In keeping with the Common Core grade level bands, this document reflects both the 11th and 12th grade Culturally Relevant classes. The enduring understandings and the Common Core standards for all ELA classrooms in the 11-12 band are the same. At the 11th grade level, the teacher provides scaffolding and support through instructional design and activities. At the 12th grade level, students are expected to work independently and proficiently. The distinctions between the classes are found with:
 - Essential questions at each grade level
 - Suggested activities at each grade level
 - Recommend texts specific to each grade level
 - Sequenced topics for each class

ELA Curriculum Framework: Culturally Relevant ELA: African American Viewpoint

Topics of Study

Explanation: the topics below reflect the content areas of emphasis for each ELA African American Viewpoint class. As with the general education ELA classroom, teachers have individual discretion in terms of the exact texts (from the recommended text list), quantity of text, and amount of time on topic. Through these topics of study, teachers are able to align instruction and activities to Common Core standards.

CURRICULUM NOT ADOPTED

ELA Curriculum Framework: Culturally Relevant ELA: African American Viewpoint
Strand: Reading Literature Grades 11-12
Cluster: Key Ideas and Details
Enduring Understanding: Imaginative texts can provide rich and timeless insights into universal themes, dilemmas and social realities of the world. Literary text represents complex stories in which the reflective and apparent thoughts and actions of human beings are revealed. Life therefore shapes literature and literature shapes life.
Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study) English 5, 6 <ol style="list-style-type: none"> How do texts written by black authors reflect a struggle for humanity and human rights? Does every piece of literature by a writer of color need to be read with a critical lens of race or ethnicity? What decisions do writers make in how to develop a particular concept or idea? English 7, 8 <ol style="list-style-type: none"> How can literature serve as a vehicle for addressing issues related to race and racism? How is the coming of age story both universal and culturally specific? How does literature serve to deconstruct and challenge negative beliefs about race? How does literature reflect diverse perspectives and reactions to similar events and theme?
Standard Statements The student reader will: 11-12.RL.1 Cite strong and thorough textual evidence to support analysis of what the text says explicitly as well as inferences drawn from the text, including determining where the text leaves matters uncertain. 11-12.RL.2 Determine two or more themes or central ideas of a text and analyze their development over the course of the text, including how they interact and build on one another to produce a complex account; provide an objective summary of the text. 11-12.RL.3 Analyze the impact of the author’s choices regarding how to develop and relate elements of a story or drama.	Examples and Explanations English 5, 6 <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Identify important themes, characters and writing styles in Their Eyes Were Watching God. Write an explanatory analysis in which you examine the ways in which Hurston’s decisions regarding writing style (syntax), diction, and themes impacted the development of the story and the reaction of the audience. Through a close reading of multiple texts (the plays, novels, short stories, poetry, essays, music, and art by canonical and non-canonical Harlem Renaissance figures including Langston Hughes, Zora Neale Hurston, Countee Cullen, Claude McKay, Nella Larsen, Richard Nugent, Alain Locke, W.E.B. - challenging concepts of black masculinity in that time period. In your dialectical notebook, provide text evidence and a brief analysis to support your claims.
2. In your literature circle book selection, trace the evolution of one or more themes or concepts throughout the text. Use text evidence to show the author’s intentional choices in developing the concept.
 3. Evaluate diverse visual representations of black women in digital media to identify the overt and covert concepts that are illustrated. Create a visual synthesis (collage, poster board, PowerPoint, digital short, etc.) to convey your synthesis of the concepts. Present to class for critique and discussion.

In the previous grade band...

Students were expected to determine the impact of figurative and connotative words on tone, examine how an author’s choice of structure influences the text, and analyze multiple points of view.

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Socratic Seminar

The Socratic Seminar provides autonomy for the students in a communal format in which students must cite strong and thorough textual evidence to support analysis of what the text says. Areas to explore include how authors use literary techniques such as theme, characterization, plot, specific details, etc., within a work. Information about the Socratic Seminar can be found at http://www.saskschools.ca/curr_content/bestpractice/socratic/index.html

Plot Analysis/Conventions

Use picture books (Cinderella stories, fairy tales) to analyze plot and to introduce common conventions. After reading a picture book, students apply concepts to another work of literature. For example, the novel Ethan Frome contains the same fairy tale elements as Snow White. For a variation of this, try introducing a work of literature using one of the “I Wish” songs from any Disney princess movie.

3x3 Literary Analysis of Plot for Central Idea

Create a chart for students to complete which has three spaces for students to summarize the plot in three words (noun, action verb, object) for each of the beginning, middle and end of the story. Then, chart three spaces below for students to write in three words (noun, action verb, object) to analyze the development of the plot over the course of the text. Students then use those sentences to determine the central idea.

Craft and Structure

CURRICULUM NOT ADOPTED

Standard Statements

The student reader will:

11-12.RL.4 Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in the text, including figurative and connotative meanings; analyze the impact of specific word choices on meaning and tone, including words with multiple meanings or language that is particularly fresh, engaging, or beautiful. (Include Shakespeare as well as other authors.)

11-12.RL.5 Analyze how an author’s choices concerning how to structure specific parts of a text (e.g., the choice of where to begin or end a story, the choice to provide a comedic or tragic resolution) contribute to its overall structure and meaning as well as its aesthetic impact.

11-12.RL.6 Analyze a case in which grasping a point of view requires distinguishing what is directly stated in a text from what is really meant (e.g., satire, sarcasm, irony, or understatement).

Examples and Explanations

English 5, 6

1. In a syntax analysis, closely read folktales, riddles, idioms, and lyrics in blues, spirituals, and jazz, to determine how language impacted meaning and interpretation.
2. How has race limited the writing style, diction, and themes in early works of African American literature? Select 4 texts from our reading list to synthesize your response and present in a gallery walk informal presentation structure.

English 7, 8

1. Identify important themes, characters and writing styles in each of the assigned texts, and then evaluate the ways in which African American authors were mindful of their audience when deciding which slavery experiences to write about as well as the benefits that came from choosing to write about slavery from an autobiographical standpoint. Write your findings in a formal academic argument essay.
2. Contrast writers of the Western canon (Shakespeare and Angelou) and consider how their respective uses of figurative language reflected culturally specific ideas as well as universal ideas.

In the previous grade band...

Students were expected to determine the impact of figurative and connotative words on tone, examine how an author’s choice of structure influences the text, and analyze multiple points of view.

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Change the Structure

Students change the resolution of a story and discuss the impact on rewritten tone/meaning/etc. This strategy helps students understand structure and how an author’s choices contribute to overall structure/meaning/aesthetic impact. For example, Hester exposes Dimmesdale. How does this change impact other characters, minor plot lines, etc?

Choose a Word/Phrase

Students choose a word or phrase from literature that is interesting, confusing, descriptive or relates to a literary element (figurative language) and write it on a sticky note. The sticky notes are posted around the classroom. Students then take blank sticky notes and silently read and comment on others’ observations. Students then share their quotations and their favorite comments with the class.

Reconstruct the Plot

Expose students to works of literature that are not in chronological order and/or are told from various point of views. For example, in the novel Ellen Foster, the time shifts and students must pay careful attention to what is happening. One way to handle this is to have students create a chart to track the time period. They could then reconstruct the plot in chronological order.

Cluster: Integration of Knowledge and Ideas

Enduring Understanding: Competent readers can synthesize information from a variety of sources including print, audio and visual. Comparing and contrasting text in a variety of forms or genres provides a full understanding of the author’s message/theme as well as the ideas being explored.

Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study)

English 5, 6

1. What social conditions fostered the rise of political activism and the Civil Rights movement?
2. Does every piece of literature by a writer of color need to be read with a critical lens of race or ethnicity?
3. How does text written by black authors reflect a struggle for humanity and human rights?
4. How are race, gender and class represented or neglected in early American literature?

English 7, 8

1. How does literature reflect diverse perspectives and reactions to similar events and themes?
2. How has literature served as a vehicle for addressing issues related to race and racism?
3. How is the coming of age story both universal and culturally specific?
4. How does literature serve to deconstruct and challenge negative beliefs about race?

Standard Statements

The student reader will:

11-12.RL.7 Analyze multiple interpretations of a story, drama, or poem (e.g., recorded or live production of a play or recorded novel or poetry), evaluating how each version interprets the source text. (Include at least one play by Shakespeare and one play by an American dramatist.)

11-12.RL.8 (Not applicable to literature)

11-12.RL.9 Demonstrate knowledge of eighteenth-, nineteenth- and early-twentieth-century foundational works of American literature, including how two or more texts from the same period treat similar themes or topics.

Examples and Explanations

English 5, 6

1. After reading multiple texts regarding the American Dream, create a visual in which you represent the multiple perspectives of the American Dream (including your own) and how those perspectives are filtered through race, class and gender.
2. Compare how a foundational Anglo-American writer and a foundational black American writer address a common American theme, such as the American Dream (e.g., Fitzgerald’s The Great Gatsby and Ellison’s Invisible Man).

English 7, 8

1. Contrast the multiple perspectives of multiple pieces of early American literature that represent the various populations in the country in terms of a constant idea (justice, role of women, freedom, equality, borders, etc.).
2. Compare the coming-of-age process described black women writers and black male writers. In an informative/explanatory essay, contrast the perspectives of gender as they intersect with race.

In the previous grade band...

Integration of Knowledge and Ideas

CURRICULUM NOT ADOPTED

Students were expected to analyze the representation of a subject or key scene in two different mediums and examine how an author uses source material in specific texts.

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Ballad Writing

After familiarizing themselves with ballad themes and forms, students write their own original ballads, which they will perform in small groups. Students engage in self-reflection on their group performances and on the literary characteristics of their ballads. Students read, analyze and discuss medieval English ballads and then list characteristics of the genre. Students will emphasize the narrative characteristics of ballads by choosing a ballad to act out. Using the Venn diagram tool, students next compare medieval ballads with modern ones.

Compare/Contrast

Students compare and contrast (in essay form, in chart form, in visual form) two writers from the same time period. Emily Dickinson and Walt Whitman work well for this type of activity because they seem to have nothing in common, but they both are rebellious and they both revolutionized American poetry.

Compare an Issue

Students compare text from a time period on an issue with historical events resulting from those beliefs. End with a seminar letting students draw and support their own conclusions. Students need to synthesize materials and evaluate the information.

CURRICULUM NOT ADOPTED

Strand: Reading Literature Grades 11-12

Cluster: Range of Reading and Level of Text Complexity

Enduring Understanding: In order to meet the rigorous demands of college and/or the workforce, students must be able to read and comprehend increasingly complex literary text. Through extensive reading of a variety of genres from diverse cultures and a range of time periods, students will gain literary knowledge and build important reading skills and strategies, as well as become familiar with various text structures and elements. When teachers match students with challenging, engaging text in the classroom it creates an atmosphere that helps to nurture curious, capable and critical readers.

Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study)

English 5, 6

1. In what ways did slavery impact the development of black identity and by extension, black literature?
2. How can different voices address a common theme or central idea in literature?
3. How does literature help us to understand the human condition?
4. How did literature serve as a revolutionary force during the Black Power movement?

English 7, 8

1. Why did some black Americans use “passing” as a means to assimilate into white American society?
2. How have African American writers redefined Western literary genres to reflect their own cultural values and norms?
3. How does literature highlight the flaws and strengths of a given society and relationships between its cultural and racial groups?

Standard Statements

The student reader will:

11-12.RL.10 By the end of grade 11, read and comprehend literature, including stories, dramas, and poems, in the grades 11 text complexity band proficiently, with scaffolding as needed at the high end of the range. By the end of grade 12, read and comprehend literature, including stories, dramas, and poems, at the high end of the grades 11 text complexity band independently and proficiently.

Teachers need to match complex, grade-appropriate texts to their students.

Examples and Explanations

English 5, 6

1. Prepare for a Paideia Seminar discussion using our readings on race and social theory in order to discuss how black people have confronted racial stereotypes that helped legitimize the existence of slavery from the time they were first brought to America in chains; and how the identity of African Americans has been influenced both by the way others perceive African Americans and by how they perceive themselves. Explore the idea of self-definition. Discuss specific theories of race that contributed to the enslavement of African Americans and connect these theories with common themes in the slave narrative.
2. Read and connect excerpts from various African American authors (i.e., Narrative Life of Frederick Douglas, by Douglas; Incidence in the Life of a Slave Girl by Jacobs, Confessions of Nat Turner by T.R. Gray, “We Wear the Mask” by Dunbar and “Minstrel Man” by Hughes) to excerpts from Adventures of Huckleberry Finn (satire) by Twain.

Range of Reading and Level of Text Complexity

CURRICULUM NOT ADOPTED

English 7, 8

1. How are issues of race and racism and the juxtaposition of blackness and whiteness found in world literature across various time periods? Engage in an extended research project in which you closely read several texts in several time periods and world regions to support your analysis.

In the previous grade band...

Students were expected to read and comprehend literature, including stories, dramas and poems in the grades 9-10 text complexity band proficiently, with scaffolding as needed at the high end of the range. By the end of grade 10, students were expected to read and comprehend literature, including stories, dramas and poems at the high end of the grades 9-10 text complexity band independently and proficiently.

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Audio Text

Students listen to a compact disc (online audio) of the text being read. Low-level readers/learners may be able to enjoy and comprehend the more complex concepts of higher order thinking skills while listening. More advanced readers can follow along in the book to understand proper pronunciation of new vocabulary introduced in the text.

Music and Literature

Scaffold student learning of classic texts by introducing key plot elements through video and song. For example, when introducing the poem “The Rime of the Ancient Mariner,” show students the scenes from the teen movie Telling You where the ancient mariner appears (he tells part of his story at a pizza parlor). Then play Iron Maiden’s version of “The Rime of the Ancient Mariner,” noting that the music dramatically slows down when the mariner is stuck on the water. Show pictures of an albatross while the song plays. Students can then read the text with greater understanding.

English 5, 6

1. How does literature reflect the social and political struggles of African Americans?
2. What has been the role of public education in shaping the cultural identity of black Americans?
3. How does literature help us to understand the human condition?

English 7, 8

1. How are definitions of self and culture shaped by neighborhood and community?
2. In what ways does “passing” bring forth the possibility that race, gender, and ethnicity are socially constructed?
3. How has racism affected black Americans? Their perceptions of themselves? Other people’s perceptions of black Americans?
4. How are various notions of family treated in African American literature?

Standard Statements

The student reader will:

11-12.RI.1 Cite strong and thorough textual evidence to support analysis of what the text says explicitly as well as inferences drawn from the text, including determining where the text leaves matters uncertain.

11-12.RI.2 Determine two or more central ideas of a text and analyze their development over the course of the text, including how they interact and build on one another to provide a complex analysis; provide an objective summary of the text.

11-12.RI.3 Analyze a complex set of ideas or sequence of events and explain how specific individuals, ideas, or events interact and develop over the course of the text.

Examples and Explanations

English 5, 6

1. Survey the textual representation of racial progress and uplift in post-Civil War black fiction and political writing. Prepare for a formal poster session presentation in which you examine how the traditions in black writing during the era of Reconstruction anticipated concerns raised in W.E. B. DuBois’ seminal work, Souls of Black Folk (1903). In particular, examine how the specter of slavery haunted a new and radical vision for racial uplift in the uncertain decades leading up to the early twentieth century. Explore how ideologies of racial progress and uplift exposed certain class-related difficulties in the production of a post-emancipation black identity.
2. Determine how late nineteenth-century African-American women writers handled issues related the Reconstruction era (focus on Ida B. Wells, Anna Julia Cooper and Frances Ellen Watkins Harper).
3. In your literature circles, use a discussion graphic organizer to reflect on how works written by African Americans (especially works from Booker T. Washington, Ida B. Wells, W.E.B. Dubois) started to alter the accepted view of black people and the treatment they received in America.

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Cornell Note-Taking System

Students use an adapted version of the Cornell System for Note-Taking while they read. Using the basic page format of “Cue (Recall)” column, “Summary” section and “Note Taking” area, students take their notes as they read rather than as they listen to a lecture. A full explanation of the Cornell System for Note-Taking is available at <http://www.montgomerycollege.edu/Departments/enreadtp/Cornell.html>

Jigsaw

Use the jigsaw approach to reading by dividing the text into segments so that each student is responsible for only one segment or one idea. Students then share knowledge learned with the class. Students are less intimidated when they have a smaller amount of text to process, but they still are practicing deep reading skills.

Double-Entry Journal

Students keep double-entry journals as they read. In the left-hand column, the student copies or summarizes text which is intriguing, puzzling or moving or which connects to a previous entry or situation. In the right-hand column, the student reacts to the quotation or summary. The entry may include a comment, a question, a connection made or an analysis.

Poster Analysis

Students analyze World War II posters, chosen from online collections, to explore how argument, persuasion and propaganda differ. The lesson begins with a full-class exploration of the famous, “I Want You for the U.S. Army” poster, wherein students explore the similarities and differences between argument, persuasion and propaganda, and apply one of the genres to the poster.

Editorial Style

- Students select an editorialist whose writing they find compelling and read five of that writer’s editorials. Students analyze word choice, rhetorical strategies and effectiveness.
- Students choose a current topic and write editorials imitating the style of the author.
- Students compose an additional writer’s memo detailing specific parallels between their editorials and the author’s editorial.

Strand: Reading Informational Text Grades 11-12

Cluster: Integration of Knowledge and Ideas

Enduring Understanding: Integrating knowledge and ideas from informational text expands the knowledge base and the perspectives found in text, which empowers the reader to make informed choices in life.

Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study)

English 5, 6

1. How have segregation and desegregation affected the development of African American stories and identity?
2. How does the historical context influence power dynamics?
3. How does colonization impact the development of a culture’s stories and a people’s identity?

English 7, 8

1. How is the concept of race used to construct and reinforce power relationships?
2. How has racism affected American society on the individual and larger group level?
3. What social conditions foster the rise of political activism?

Standard Statements

The student reader will:

11-12.RI.7 Integrate and evaluate multiple sources of information presented in different media or formats (e.g., visually, quantitatively) as well as in words in order to address a question or solve a problem.

11-12.RI.8 Delineate and evaluate the reasoning in seminal U.S. texts, including the application of constitutional principles and use of legal reasoning (e.g., in U.S. Supreme Court majority opinions and dissents) and the premises, purposes, and arguments in works of public advocacy (e.g., The Federalist, presidential addresses).

11-12.RI.9 Analyze seventeenth-, eighteenth-, and nineteenth-century foundational U.S. documents of historical and literary significance (including The Declaration of Independence, the Preamble to the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, and Lincoln’s Second Inaugural Address) for their themes, purposes, and rhetorical features.

Examples and Explanations

English 5, 6

1. How did early American writings from indigenous populations differ from early American writings from Western European immigrants and descendants of those immigrants? Closely examine differences in themes, purposes, and rhetorical features. Present your findings in a well-crafted informative/explanatory essay.

English 7, 8

1. Select three separate presidential addresses that presented in three different mediums. Present a lesson to the whole class teaching the content and form of the addresses with emphasis on historical and political context, rhetorical decisions, and connection to actual, eventual accomplishments of the president.

In the previous grade band...

Students were expected to examine various text presented in different mediums, delineate and evaluate arguments, and analyze the themes and concepts of seminal U.S. documents of historical and literary significance.

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Compare/Contrast

- Students read “Letter from Birmingham Jail” and then evaluate a picture, a cartoon and a video relating to civil rights.
- Students compare and contrast the message in the original text to the messages in the picture, cartoon and video.

(Frames of Mind: A Rhetorical Reader with Occasions for Writing by Robert Dianni and Patsy Hoy)

Create Your Own Historical Document

Before reading historical documents, students create one of their own (e.g., farewell address to their classmates, a state of the union about their accomplishments and goals over the past year). Then, after discussing themes and content of their own, students read the original document. This strategy scaffolds them into understanding the genre.

Suitable for Texting

Students analyze 17th-, 18th- and 19th-century foundational U.S. documents of historical and literary significance for their themes, purposes and rhetorical features.

- Basic: Rewrite the Mayflower Compact into a message suitable for texting. Define the audience, research the meaning of the unfamiliar words, determine to whom the text would be sent, etc.
- Extended: Write a four-sentence précis for the Mayflower Compact.

Summarizing a historical document into four sentences or into a modern texting format hones analytical skills to find the important details. Have students consider the audience of both the original and a new audience. Students could create a new compact using the basic argument of the Mayflower Compact.

When teachers match students with challenging, engaging text in the classroom it creates an atmosphere that helps to nurture curious, capable and critical readers.

Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study)

English 5, 6

1. What is the reciprocal relationship between text and the Black Power movement?
2. How do different genres of informational text represent complex ideas?
3. What were the purposes of art and literature during the Harlem Renaissance?
4. How can a reader determine the purpose of a text and whether or not that purpose is met?

English 7, 8

1. Can a text be objective?
2. How was the categorization of blackness set in opposition to whiteness?
3. What types of text were the most important in the social justice movements of America’s past?

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Text Complexity

Students use a readability program to find text complexity that aligns to their grade level. Before students can accept the challenge of accelerating text complexity, they should understand just what it is, how writers achieve it, how it affects understanding or enjoyment of reading. We read for different purposes (e.g., college vs. high school text, consumer camera manual vs. heavy equipment manual). Students need a cadre of reading techniques to manage between college, the workplace and the marketplace.

Basic: Students select a complicated instructional manual for a consumer product (e.g., Video Camera Manual), and judge the education level of the consumer. Students then determine what adjustments could be made in the directions to simplify the manual.

Extended: Compare high school chemistry text readability with a College Level I Chemistry text. What additional skills does the college student need in order to be successful with the college text? Compare text complexity in a chemistry or social studies text, college text, etc. For more information, visit <http://www.achieve.org/node/946>

Directed Reading Teaching Activities

Use Directed Reading Teaching Activities (DRTA) with students to activate their prior knowledge, prompt them to make predictions and test their hypotheses through the reading.

- Students read selection title (and perhaps a bit of the selection) and make predictions about content.
- Students read to first predetermined stop. They confirm, refine or reject their initial hypotheses and justify their ideas with reference to the text. Students then make new hypotheses.
- Students read the next section and follow procedures in step two. This cycle continues until text is read.

- Range of Writing

Anchor Standards Assessment Summary: For students to be college and career ready, writing is a key means of asserting and defending claims, showing what they know about a subject, and conveying what they have experienced, imagined, thought, and felt. They need to know how to combine elements of different kinds of writing—for example, to use narrative strategies within argument and explanation within narrative—to produce complex and nuanced writing. They need to be able to use technology strategically when creating, refining, and collaborating on writing. They have to become adept at gathering information, evaluating sources, and citing material accurately, reporting findings from their research and analysis of sources in a clear and cogent manner. They must have the flexibility, concentration, and fluency to produce high-quality first draft text under a tight deadline as well as the capacity to revisit and make improvements to a piece of writing over multiple drafts when circumstances encourage or require it.

Cluster: Text Types and Purposes

Enduring Understanding: Writers share information, opinions and ideas by using multiple techniques and text types. This knowledge allows them to communicate in appropriate and meaningful ways to achieve their intended purpose.

Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study)

English 5, 6

1. How can a writer or speaker use various literary techniques (i.e., symbolism, motif, metaphor, and tone) to achieve a specific purpose or goal?
2. How do writers portray power imbalances in text?
3. How does form/structure impact content?
4. How do writers make decisions regarding content, genre, and voice?

1. How does structure impact content in writing?
2. How can writers challenge and change public consciousness?
3. How can a writer or speaker use various literary techniques (i.e., symbolism, motif, metaphor and tone) to achieve a specific purpose?

Standard Statements

The student reader will:

11-12.W.1 Write arguments to support claims in an analysis of substantive topics or texts, using valid reasoning and relevant and sufficient evidence.

- a. Introduce precise, knowledgeable claim(s), establish the significance of the claim(s), distinguish the claim(s) from alternate or opposing claims, and create an organization that logically sequences claim(s), counterclaims, reasons, and evidence.
- b. Develop claim(s) and counterclaims fairly and thoroughly, supplying the most relevant evidence for each while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both in a manner that anticipates the audience’s knowledge level, concerns, values, and possible biases.
- c. Use words, phrases, and clauses as well as varied syntax to link the major sections of the text, create cohesion, and clarify the relationships between claim(s) and reasons, between reasons and evidence, and between claim(s) and counterclaims.
- d. Establish and maintain a formal style and objective tone while attending to the norms and conventions of the discipline in which they are writing.
- e. Provide a concluding statement or section that follows from and supports the argument presented.

11-12.W.2 Write informative/explanatory texts to examine and convey complex ideas, concepts, and information clearly and accurately through the effective selection,

Examples and Explanations

English 5, 6

1. Use a narrative response from a journal entry as a basis for a narrative writing (essay/story) in which you tell a story (either fiction or literary nonfiction) that addresses any of the themes or ideas from our most current readings.

English 7, 8

1. Use multiple class readings about the development of the concept of race as the basis for an informative/explanatory essay about your understanding of racism in the U.S. This should be a drafted, formal academic paper in which you cite multiple sources to establish and support your claims.

In the previous grade band...

Students were expected to produce informative and narrative writings that examine and convey complex ideas, and have well-developed arguments with valid reasoning, relevant evidence and well-chosen details.

Text Types and Purposes

organization, and analysis of content.

- a. Introduce a topic; organize complex ideas, concepts, and information so that each new element builds on that which precedes it to create a unified whole; include formatting (e.g., headings), graphics (e.g., figures, tables), and multimedia when useful to aiding comprehension.
- b. Develop the topic thoroughly by selecting the most significant and relevant facts, extended definitions, concrete details, quotations, or other information and examples appropriate to the audience’s knowledge of the topic.
- c. Use appropriate and varied transitions and syntax to link the major sections of the text, create cohesion, and clarify the relationships among complex ideas and concepts.
- d. Use precise language, domain-specific vocabulary, and techniques such as metaphor, simile, and analogy to manage the complexity of the topic.
- e. Establish and maintain a formal style and objective tone while attending to the norms and conventions of the discipline in which they are writing.
- f. Provide a concluding statement or section that follows from and supports the information or explanation presented (e.g., articulating implications or the significance of the topic).

11-12.W.3 Write narratives to develop real or imagined experiences or events using effective technique, well-chosen details, and well-structured event sequences.

- a. Engage and orient the reader by setting out a problem, situation, or observation and its significance, establishing one or multiple point(s) of view, and introducing a narrator and/or characters; create a smooth progression of experiences or events.
- b. Use narrative techniques, such as dialogue, pacing, description, reflection, and multiple plot lines, to develop experiences, events, and/or characters.
- c. Use a variety of techniques to sequence events so that they build on one another to create a coherent whole and build toward a particular tone and outcome (e.g., a sense of mystery, suspense, growth, or resolution).
- d. Use precise words and phrases, telling details, and sensory language to convey a vivid picture of the experiences, events, setting, and/or characters.
- e. Provide a conclusion that follows from and reflects on what is experienced, observed, or resolved over the course of the narrative.

Argumentative Writing Strategies

After frontloading strategies using the SOAPST one strategy, students find and read opinion/editorial examples from different newspapers about a single topic. The students analyze these to determine the strategies writers use to create a logical argument.

- S = subject
- O = occasion
- A = audience
- P = purpose
- S = speaker
- T = tone

More information about this strategy can be found at <http://faculty.stuartschool.org/~leckstrom/SOAPSToneAnalysisStrategy.htm>

Evaluating Models of Performance

- Explain the criteria for a particular writing assignment.
- Show students models of essays representing a range of scores.
- Have students assess them based on the criteria discussed.
- Students can use this knowledge to write their own essay with the same criteria.

Enduring Understanding: Effective writing is the result of a multi-stage, reflective process in which the writer must develop, plan, revise, edit and rewrite work to evoke change or clarify ideas. The stages of these processes are enhanced with collaboration and technology.

Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study)

English 5, 6

1. How can a writer use multiple language registers to explore, critique, and deconstruct cultural assumptions?
2. How does a writer shape writing for specific audiences?

English 7, 8

1. How can a writer use multiple language registers to explore, critique, and deconstruct cultural assumptions?
2. Is technology critical to professional, scholarly writing?

Standard Statements

The student reader will

11-12.W.4 Produce clear and coherent writing in which the development, organization, and style are appropriate to task, purpose, and audience. (Grade-specific expectations for writing types are defined in standards 1-3.)

11-12.W.5 Develop and strengthen writing as needed by planning, revising, editing, rewriting, or trying a new approach, focusing on addressing what is most significant for a specific purpose and audience.

11-12.W.6 Use technology, including the Internet, to produce, publish, and update individual or shared writing products in response to ongoing feedback, including new arguments or information.

Examples and Explanations

English 5, 6

1. After identifying a specific research area of interest in African American history, culture, philosophy, or literature, create a site in Edmodo for use with your peers as a teaching tool. Incorporate primary sources, graphics, personal reflection/response (blogging), and an intentional, helpful organizational structure.

English 7, 8

1. Critically revise a piece of writing from your portfolio, both self and peer revision, for submission with college or scholarship application.

Photo Gallery

Students take photographs that illustrate a piece of their writing and create a hallway or gallery display of their pictures and writing. Invite faculty and other classes for an author’s talk in the gallery, with each writer reading and discussing his or her work.

Plan Strategy with STOP

Students follow these steps to develop and organize their ideas for a piece of persuasive writing:

- Suspend your judgment and generate as many ideas on each side of the argument as possible.
- Take a side.
- Organize your notes and ideas and decide which ideas you are going to use to support your side and which ideas are going to be used to refute on the opposing side.
- Plan as you write.

This strategy can be teacher led or student directed. With the last step, writers continue to add, change or delete from the initial plan. For more information, visit www.thewritingteacher.org/writing-blog-home/2008/10/1/research-based-best-practices-for-teaching-writing-a-discussion.html

Anchor Standards Assessment Summary: To become college and career ready, students must have ample opportunities to take part in a variety of rich, structured conversations—as part of a whole class, in small groups, and with a partner—built around important content. They must be able to contribute appropriately to these conversations, to make comparisons and contrasts, and to analyze and synthesize a multitude of ideas in accordance with the standards of evidence appropriate to a particular discipline. Whatever their intended major or profession, high school graduates will depend heavily on their ability to listen attentively to others so that they are able to build on others’ meritorious ideas while expressing their own clearly and persuasively. The Internet has accelerated the speed at which connections between speaking, listening, reading, and writing can be made, requiring that students be ready to use these modalities nearly simultaneously. Technology itself is changing quickly, creating a new urgency for students to be adaptable in response to change.

1. Prepare for a Paideia Seminar discussion on race and ethnicity readings from current quarter. Bring specific focusing questions you would like to discuss along with annotated texts to use for support during the discussion.

In the previous grade band...

students were expected to initiate and participate effectively in a range of collaborative discussions, integrate multiple sources of information presented in diverse media and evaluate a speaker’s point of view, reasoning and use of evidence and rhetoric

Comprehension and Collaboration

informed decisions and solve problems, evaluating the credibility and accuracy of each source and noting any discrepancies among the data.

11-12.SL.3 Evaluate a speaker’s point of view, reasoning, and use of evidence and rhetoric, assessing the stance, premises, links among ideas, word choice, points of emphasis, and tone used.

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Research and Present

Using a major current event (e.g., BP Oil Spill), students evaluate multiple sources, speeches, reports and documentaries covering the event to determine similarities and differences of the various representations of biases from most to least objective. Extended: Using the continuum of bias, students analyze two sources on the extreme end of the spectrum. Then, students create a biased piece from the most unbiased piece and vice-versa. In an oral and written presentation, students present the products and justifications.

Critical Thinking/Inquiry

How does a person remain objective in the face of overwhelming catastrophe? What must one consider during this type of event? Who is at risk? Who is safe? How do we weigh cost vs. human/animal life? Students can explore these questions and the importance of primary source information by reviewing historical information about medicine at <http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC194789/>.

Socratic Seminar

Students learn and participate in a Socratic Seminar based on texts they are reading. Students can be assigned different sections of the writing and then alternate as discussion leaders. Information about a Socratic Seminar can be found at http://www.saskschools.ca/curr_content/bestpractice/socratic/index.html

Strand: Speaking and Listening Grades 11-12

Cluster: Presentation of Knowledge and Ideas

Enduring Understanding: Proficient speakers make deliberate choices regarding language, content and media to capture and maintain the audience in order to convey their message.

Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study)

English 5, 6

1. How does the historical context influence power dynamics?
2. What makes an individual an insider or an outsider in American society?
3. How do assumptions about skin color mask national or cultural heritage?

English 7, 8

1. How has digital media impacted America’s understanding of race and ethnicity over the past 50 years?
2. What rhetorical strategies are most commonly used in contemporary media?
3. How are different rhetorical strategies effective for different groups of American society?

Standard Statements

The student reader will

11-12.SL.4 Present information, findings, and supporting evidence, conveying a clear and distinct perspective, such that listeners can follow the line of reasoning, alternative or opposing perspectives are addressed, and the organization, development, substance, and style are appropriate to purpose, audience, and a range of formal and informal tasks.

11-12.SL.5 Make strategic use of digital media (e.g., textual, graphical, audio, visual, and interactive elements) in presentations to enhance understanding of findings, reasoning, and evidence and to add interest.

11-12.SL.6 Adapt speech to a variety of contexts and tasks, demonstrating a command of formal English when indicated or appropriate.

Presentation of Knowledge and Ideas

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Dramatize

Students dramatize information from a scene in a non-fiction work or informational text conveying appropriate tone/mood and videotape for presentation. Students present information to aid understanding of material and creatively present to audience.

Digital Project

Students create a digital project to enhance understanding of their written findings/textual evidence. Keep the requirements broad enough to encourage creativity and choice. For example, require students to use one visual element, one audio element and one text element. Students can create a video with a song playing in the background that includes excerpts from the text. Students can write a song using excerpts from the text and sing it to the class.

Strand: Language

Clusters in this strand:

- Conventions of Standard English
- Knowledge of Language
- Vocabulary Acquisition and Use

Anchor Standards Assessment Summary: To be college and career ready in language, students must have firm control over the conventions of standard English. They must come to appreciate that language is as at least as much a matter of craft as of rules and be able to choose words, syntax, and punctuation to express themselves and achieve particular functions and rhetorical effects. They must also have extensive vocabularies, built through reading and study, enabling them to comprehend complex texts and engage in purposeful writing about and conversations around content. They need to become skilled in determining or clarifying the meaning of words and phrases they encounter, choosing flexibly from an array of strategies to aid them. They must learn to see an individual word as part of a network of other words, words for example that have similar denotations but different connotations. The inclusion of Language standards in their own strand should not be taken as an indication that skills related to conventions, effective language use, and vocabulary are important to reading, writing, speaking, and listening; indeed, they are inseparable from such contexts.

Strand: Language Grades 11-12

Cluster: Conventions of Standard English

Enduring Understanding: Language is an essential tool for understanding our world. Effective written and oral communications rely upon understanding and applying the rules of standard English. Success in the post-secondary setting, as well as the workplace, requires effective communication

Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study)

Standard Statements

The student reader will

- 11-12.L.1 Demonstrate command of the conventions of standard English grammar and usage when writing or speaking.
- a. Apply the understanding that usage is a matter of convention, can change over time, and is sometimes contested.
 - b. Resolve issues of complex or contested usage, consulting references (e.g., Merriam-Webster’s Dictionary of English Usage, Garner’s Modern American Usage) as needed.
- 11-12.L.2 Demonstrate command of the conventions of standard English capitalization, punctuation, and spelling when writing.
- a. Observe hyphenation conventions.
 - b. Spell correctly.

Conventions of Standard English

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Adding Modifiers

Take a core sentence without any modifiers and increasingly make the sentence more specific. Have students look at a range of five sentences and discuss which one provides the most specific information.

Student-Evaluation, Peer-Evaluation

Students examine individual writings/paragraphs to the bones. They analyze sentence structure, length, punctuation and verb strength. This strategy allows students to pay attention to syntax and diction in order to improve to mature writers. It also helps them make effective choices for meaning and style.

Cluster: Knowledge of Language

Enduring Understanding: Language exists within the contexts of audience and purpose. Knowledge of language and skillful application of conventions and craft enhance expression and aid comprehension. Success in the post-secondary setting, as well as the workplace, requires effective communication.

Essential Questions: (refer to Appendix A for extended sample Essential Questions tied to specific Topics of Study)

English 5, 6

1. How does propaganda influence public opinion about a group or race of people?
2. How does the social status of racist and bigoted language fluctuate?
3. How is language use to construct and reinforce power relationships?

English 7, 8

1. How does propaganda influence public opinion about a group or race of people?
2. How does the social status of racist and bigoted language fluctuate?
3. How is language use to construct and reinforce power relationships?

Standard Statements

The student reader will

11-12.L.3 Apply knowledge of language to understand how language functions in different contexts, to make effective choices for meaning or style, and to comprehend more fully when reading or listening.

- a. Vary syntax for effect, consulting references (e.g., Tufte’s Artful Sentences) for guidance as needed; apply an understanding of syntax to the study of complex texts when reading.

Examples and Explanations

English 5, 6

1. After researching media images of black Americans in the media, create a poster board in which you represent your interpretation of African Americans historically and in contemporary society.

English 7, 8

1. Select music from 3 different periods of African American history. In a formal presentation, share a syntax analysis in which you present your understanding of the function of language and artistic choices impact meaning and style.

Compelling Sentences

- Students select two to three consecutive and compelling sentences from a written work they are studying in class.
- Students analyze the usage (diction, punctuation, grammar, etc.)
- Students craft similar sentences or change original sentences and discuss the effects of the changes

Standard Statements

The student reader will

11-12.L.4 Determine or clarify the meaning of unknown and multiple-meaning words and phrases based on grades 11-12 reading and content, choosing flexibly from a range of strategies.

- a. Use context (e.g., the overall meaning of a sentence, paragraph, or text; a word’s position or function in a sentence) as a clue to the meaning of a word or phrase.
- b. Identify and correctly use patterns of word changes that indicate different meanings or parts of speech (e.g., conceive, conception, conceivable).
- c. Consult general and specialized reference materials (e.g., dictionaries, glossaries, thesauruses), both print and digital, to find the pronunciation of a word or determine or clarify its precise meaning, its part of speech, its etymology, or its standard usage.
- d. Verify the preliminary determination of the meaning of a word or phrase (e.g., by checking the inferred meaning in context or in a dictionary).

11-12.L.5 Demonstrate understanding of figurative language, word relationships, and nuances in word meanings.

- a. Interpret figures of speech (e.g. hyperbole, paradox) in context and analyze their role in the text.
- b. Analyze nuances in the meaning of words with similar denotations.

11-12.L.6 Acquire and use accurately general academic and domain-specific words and phrases, sufficient for reading, writing, speaking, and listening at the college and career readiness level; demonstrate independence in gathering vocabulary knowledge when considering a word or phrase important to comprehension or expression.

EXAMPLE INSTRUCTIONAL STRATEGIES

Figurative Language and Cartoons

Collect cartoons and comic strips that illustrate figurative language. Distribute these to students and have them work in pairs or small groups to determine and interpret the reason for use of the figurative language example illustrated in each cartoon. Then have them draw their own examples.

Skits and New Vocabulary

Students work with a partner or in groups to create skits that illustrate new vocabulary words or figures of speech. Putting the words in action makes them concrete; students are more likely to remember both the words and their meaning.

Four Corners

Using a multiple-meaning word (homonym, homograph, homophone) or an unknown word (such as predilection in the sentence “This predilection for minding other people’s business was time-honored among the people of Salem, and it undoubtedly created many of the suspicions which were to feed the coming madness.” Arthur Miller’s The Crucible), students complete the following activity.

Each student or group receives a different word. Before coming across the unfamiliar word in their reading, students should write the vocabulary word in the center of a note card.

- In the upper left-hand corner, they take a guess at its definition.
- In the upper-right hand corner, they write a definition of the word after reading it in context.
- In the bottom left-hand corner, they write the correct definition of the word after looking it up.
- Finally, in the bottom right-hand corner, they write other forms of the word using its root or suffix or prefix.

Critical Thinking and Inquiry

Using the note cards discussed above, conduct a review by choosing one card out of those collected and reading the word. Have students attempt to define the word. This graphic organizer and the continued practice/review would lead to mastery of the group of words. Assign differentiated ability groups for filling out the note cards, grouping high and low students together.
